Contents

Fathers' Coping Resources and Children's Socioemotional Adjustment Among Children With Learning Disabilities
Michal Al-Yagon

491

Metacognitive Strategy Use of Eighth-Grade Students With and Without Learning Disabilities During Mathematical Problem Solving: A Think-Aloud Analysis
Carly Rosenzweig, Jennifer Krawec, and Marjorie Montague

508

Executive Functions as Predictors of Math Learning Disabilities
Sylke W. M. Toll, Sanne H. G. Van der Ven, Evelyn H. Kroesbergen, and Johannes E. H. Van Luit

521

Assessing College-Level Learning Difficulties and "At Riskness" for Learning Disabilities and ADHD: Development and Validation of the Learning Difficulties Assessment
Steven T. Kane, John H. Walker, and George R. Schmidt

533

Initial Mental Graphemic Representation Acquisition and Later Literacy Achievement in Children With Language Impairment: A Longitudinal Study
Julie A. Wolter, Trisha Self, and Kenn Apel

543

Students With Reading and Spelling Disabilities: Peer Groups and Educational Attainment in Secondary Education
Noona Kiuru, Kaisa Haverinen, Katarina Salmela-Aro, Jari-Erik Nurmi, Hannu Savolainen, and Leena Holopainen

556

Cognitive Processing and Mathematical Achievement: A Study With Schoolchildren Between Fourth and Sixth Grade of Primary Education
Valentin Iglesias-Sarmiento and Manuel Deaño

570

Erratum

584

---

About the Artist: Nicholas Yanowitz: was excited and challenged by the prospect of entering an art contest, and he chose the subject of “a smiling frog.” Nicholas is intrigued by frogs because they can both “hop and swim, and they are cute.” Perhaps his title, “Smile,” comes from our observation that Nicholas himself is usually smiling and envisioned his frog as smiling, too. Nicholas is an intermediate student at Morning Star School in Tampa, Florida. Morning Star is a Catholic school for students with disabilities and related difficulties.